FROM THE PASTOR'S PEN

THE BEGINNING

This Sunday's gospel passage is taken from Mark, specifically Mark 1:14-20. In it we are informed that John the Baptist has been arrested and Jesus comes into Galilee proclaiming the Good News: "This is the time of fulfillment. The kingdom of God is at hand. Repent, and believe in the gospel (good news)."

Jesus begins his public ministry with virtually the same message of repentance that John the Baptist had been preaching. So Jesus' words indicate some continuity between his public ministry and that of the Baptist's.

What I find interesting are the first words of the three statements of Jesus' initial preaching as reported in Mark's gospel account, "This is the time of fulfillment." I am intrigued by the word "fulfillment."

I checked the scholarly commentaries. While the word is accurately translated as "fulfillment," which I find so interesting, the scholars don't really talk about Jesus' use of this word.

Instead, they almost all focus on the first part of the sentence, "This is the time" or "Now is the time." Time, here, in the original Greek text is Kairos. We don't have an exact equivalent in English. Time, for us, is just time. But in Greek there is chronos (as in our English "chronological") and kairos (which connotes "the proper," or "opportune" time, even the time of "crisis"). Most scriptural commentators distinguish between chronos as "clock time" and kairos as "God's time" the "time of grace" the "transcendent time."

Could this be why the commentaries don't really go into great detail over the use of the word fulfillment?

Precisely because Jesus mentions that with his advent on the scene we are now all immersed in God's time, which is, therefore, a time of fulfillment?

Since the commentaries don't focus on the term fulfillment, I went to one of my favorite resource books, a thesaurus, and looked it up. There are a number of synonyms in the thesaurus for "fulfillment." They are: contentment, accomplishment, observance, execution, completion and adjustment.

I don't think Jesus means to say fulfillment in the sense of "contentment." Not when later on he challenges his disciples to take up their cross and follow up. A cross and crucifixion are not exactly "contentment."

I also don't think he means to say fulfillment in the sense of "accomplishment." Not, at least, at this point in his ministry. He actually utilizes this term for "getting something done" when, on the cross just before he breathes his last and gives up his spirit he says, "It is finished" (John 19:30), meaning that his saving work is thus accomplished.

For the same reason, I don't think Jesus means to say fulfillment in the other senses of "observance," or "execution," or "completion." His ministry and his work are just beginning at this point.

With my thesaurus in hand, I'd have to say that Jesus uses the term fulfillment in the sense of "adjustment."

SURPRISE!

Now imagine my surprise when I turned to "adjustment" in my thesaurus and I discovered it's a term from psychology. Goodness grief! Psychology, as a discipline, wasn't even invented in Jesus' day!

I am, however, going to go with that as one way to look at what Jesus means. In psychology, adjustment pertains to "integration of personality, self-actualization, peak experience and integrated personality." In other words, God's time, the time of fulfillment, leads us to be more integrated and actualized as persons.

Our authentic self can only be found in God, through the challenge and the comfort of his grace and our making use of that grace, accepting it, working with it, our being changed by it. Jesus points the way to that assimilation of God's grace. In this earthly world, fulfillment or self-actualization through God's grace, is just a beginning, a step, a movement towards the complete Self we will find in heaven.

So, relying on the Lord Jesus, let's take discipleship one step at a time, trusting that in God's good time, we will be rewarded, and yes, fulfilled.

OUTREACH

FR. PAUL SRI LANKA OUTREACH MINISTRY

Fr. Paul served us while studying at Loyola University, then returned to his native Sri Lanka and has been supporting widows and orphans, victims of a decades long civil war, and a tsunami that destroyed the fishing industry along with the homes of many. (You can learn more about this ministry on our website by clicking here, and scrolling down to the Fr. Paul section.)

FR. PAUL NEEDS OUR HELP

Fr. Paul tells us that he can support each child in the orphanage for about $1.50 /per day. He really knows how to stretch a buck. Your donation of $500 would support a child for almost a year, $250 for almost 6 months. You can donate to this humanitarian work through Divine Mercy Parish, indicating that the contribution is for the Father Paul Foundation, one of the outreaches our parish supports. You can also click here and make a direct donation via our Divine Mercy Give Central portal.

On behalf of the Father Paul Foundation, Fr. Paul himself, the widows, orphans and victims of their civil war and tsunami, thank you for whatever you are able to do!

Here's the plan for this month:

8:00 - 10:00 am

Collection Boxes will be located in front of the St. Philip Rectory under the awning.

Needed items this month:

Rice/Rice mixes
Cereal

LOOK WHAT'S HAPPENING AT SACRED HEART SCHOOL!

The 8th grade is in the middle of their chemistry unit, learning about gas behaviors and the laws that govern them. It's always good for students to be able to visualize science concepts as opposed to just reading about them. During remote learning we relied on computer simulations for students to be able to manipulate variables to see how gas behaves. It's a great way to learn while having some fun, too.

We can't wait to have all these cuties back in the classroom!

After a scheduled two week remote learning period following Christmas break, students dropped off their school materials prior to coming back to in-person learning.
